We fled in panic, with broken hearts, carrying nothing but our pain and tears, running only to survive... I left everything behind: my memories, my dreams, my home, my life... Forced displacement, a kind that kills the soul before the body.

Let the world know that displacement is not simply moving from one place to another - it is ripping the heart out of the chest, a slow death for everything we love, for everything we once dreamed would be.

And today, all we have left is to cling to a fragile thread of hope, and to the kind and compassionate hearts that can extend a helping hand to us... so that we may continue our lives, and protect what remains of our children's dreams.

From my heart and my mother's heart to you

Dear Birgit & Michelle,

From the middle of war and fear, my mother and I want to thank you with all our hearts. You are not just donors, you have become like family to us, a true support in these very hard times.

My mother prays for you in every prayer, and I pray with her that God protects you, gives you health and blessings, and rewards you with all the good. Your support truly gives us hope and makes us feel that we are not alone in this suffering.

You are a light in this darkness, and may God write for you joy and peace of mind for every dollar you give.

With all our love and gratitude,

Please help us

I swear you are our only hope to live as humans

Ich schwöre, ihr seid unsere einzige Hoffnung, als Menschen zu leben

Thank you so much for your care and healing energy. We are really exhausted-physically and emotionally-but your words bring comfort. We try to rest, even if it's hard in this situation. Your kindness means more than you can imagine.

May God protect us all.

Dear Michelle, your words touched my heart deeply. I can't thank you enough — not just for the help, but for the way you truly care. Knowing someone like you is thinking of us gives me strength. I promise to pass your greetings to my family and my little brother — he smiled when I told him. We pray this war ends soon, and until then, your kindness is helping us hold on. Thank you from all my heart.

We love you too

My family sends their warmest regards to you, especially my little brother. You've put a smile on his face again. We are so grateful to you, and we will never forget your kindness. May life always be as kind to your heart as you've been to ours.
